Key Insights

1. Bulk-area waxing (full arms, full legs, half legs, stomach, back) on Bloom's Normal tier runs 20-51% BELOW Urban Company's starting home-service price for the same area — competitively priced there.
2. Bloom's premium Rica waxing tier runs 15-76% ABOVE UC's starting price — expected, since UC's 'starting' figure reflects its base wax type, not necessarily Rica; the real gap at matched quality is likely smaller.
3. Facials are closely aligned with the market: Fruit facial/cleanup and O3+ facial sit within about +/-15% of UC's comparable SKUs.
4. Small quick-ticket services — threading, basic manicure, basic pedicure — sit noticeably ABOVE UC's rock-bottom 'starting' prices (up to 2.5x), though those UC prices are loss-leader teasers for a bare-minimum service, not a full like-for-like match.
5. Bridal makeup is where the platforms simply don't compete: UC's highest makeup package in Gurgaon tops out around Rs 4,249, and the one Yes Madam figure found (~Rs 5,000, not confirmed Gurgaon-specific) is similar. Bloom's Rs 7,500-25,000 bridal tiers sit within the broader Delhi NCR studio bridal market (Rs 10,000-35,000+ industry wide) — this looks like appropriate specialist pricing.
6. Bottom line: Bloom's rates look broadly 'at market' for Gurgaon — competitive to below-market on routine bulk services, market-aligned on facials, and appropriately premium-positioned on bridal/event makeup where UC and Yes Madam aren't real competitors. The one soft spot is entry level quick services, which price above the platforms' cheapest advertised rates.
7. Important caveat: this comparison assumes Bloom's price list reflects at-home-comparable pricing. The original source card (see Source Notes) was a fixed-location studio rate list with no at-home mention — worth confirming these translate directly to an at-home delivery model before treating them as final.
8. Yes Madam could not be benchmarked line-by-line — it has no public price list, so the gaps above are UC-only except for the two bridal makeup rows.
9. A 'Suggested Price' column has been added to 'Bloom Price List' — market-informed (rounded midpoint with UC) where a benchmark exists, otherwise defaults to the card price for manual review. See that sheet's header note and 'Source Notes' for the exact method.
